1	Show the client the initial screen designs - what do they think? Note any adjustments they desire.	The client is satisfied with the current theming and excessively playful nature of the product - the rest of the screen designs will be compiled accordingly.	Raffay Haroon	18th January 2026
2	Explain some of the features to the client that were projected to be in the program. Note any objections or suggestions.	The client accepts the features listed but suggests that the coins earned by doing tasks be eligible for spending on real-life items, or in-app purchases if that is not possible. Additionally, they desire customisability when entering their subjects	Raffay Haroon	18th January 2026

		besides the fixed templates. Themed achievements or character designs will be considered as in-app purchases and the subject templates may be discarded due to different assessment structures between schools and grades. If they are still included, they may be pulled from a NSW DoE list of subjects online.

1	The screen designs were finalised for the product. The client was asked to look through them and offer feedback on how to improve the design elements for their purpose.	Feedback: • Separate tabs with more detail in each feature shown on dashboard • Overwhelming similarities to subjective • The simpler, the better = looks minimalistic • Level up system On the main home page: • Subjects for next day • To-do list ◦ Separate to do list on google calendar, everything else on Subjective = nice to have everything together • Timer	Raffay Haroon	24th June 2026

		• Current date and time, with everything surrounding it, in an aesthetic way • Customisable theme for home page • In the corner, notifications e.g. google classroom (maybe bar on side) • Calendar = inconvenient, also make it part of the program • Quizlet flash cards Not all of these features may be implemented, but an effort will be made to do so.

1	This meeting was used for the first testing cycle. The UI was almost completed and so the client was asked to click through it.	Feedback: • UI could be more modern with softer shapes • Caption under button on welcome screen unclear • Too many words, and the subtitle should be smaller • The checkboxes were too small • Less awkward button caption, such as “Let’s go”	Raffay Haroon	24th June 2026

1	The client clicked through the almost completed program, with minor adjustments to the UI needed to submit. This served as the second testing cycle.	- Errors to fix: - Make the XP and Coin buttons contribute to something in the dashboard. - If the user wants to cancel entering a value for the custom study-break split, let them exit the input dialogue and choose the Pomodoro option instead.
